Opening Of The Big Hospital Set For Tuesday December 11th.

The formal opening of the big hospital—a real asset of Nacogdoches is set for the afternoon of next Tuesday, which will be December 11.

The various committees in charge of this function desire it to be widely and generally known that the invitation to be present on this auspicious occasion is far-flung, and is to everybody whether they have received a formal invitation or not. Please bear this in mind and remember that it makes no difference where you live—in town, village or far away in the rural districts, the invitation is to you, so get in your autos, or buggies and wagons next Tuesday and come to the opening of the hospital. You will be welcome—everybody will be welcome, and this is the way all the committees desire to have the people generally feel in regard to the matter.

The Auxiliary of the chamber of commerce and the auxiliary of the Nacogdoches County Medical Society, will be in charge of the formal reception features, and these features will be without frills or furbelows will be informal in nature and these committees—composed of ladies who have put forth some very worthy efforts in assisting in the building of the hospital, join the building committee in bidding everybody welcome. The hour of reception are from 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon until 12 o'clock Tuesday night. This will give country visitors and town visitors an opportunity to attend and take part in the program. It will be real open house.

THE HOSPITAL

Too much cannot be said by way of praise of this big hospital. It is the culmination of a hope long expressed by the medical fraternity of Nacogdoches and East Texas, and the medical fraternity have a right to feel proud of the fact that the good old town of Nacogdoches, "The Friendly City" now has a first class and modern hospital in every sense of the word, equipped with all the appliances comforts and necessities that are found in the hospitals of the big cities. So if Dr. Nelson, Dr. Tucker, Dr. Barham, Dr. Smith or any of the physicians step high and happen not to see you, next Tuesday afternoon, just remember that they have a right to feel proud and step high, and the people throughout this great area join in congratulations.

Those Who Helped

To all the generous and loyal citizens—men and women, as well as the various fraternities and clubs that have donated the means for the furnishing of the various wards and rooms, the utmost thanks are due and are hereby made a part of the record, that those who appear upon the scene in years to come may know by whose generous hands the hospital was built and furnished or furnished after it was built. All praise and honor to them, one and all, for the cause to which they have contributed is a worthy cause, for it is dedicated to the service of humanity and the saving of human life, and alleviation of human suffering.

It is not necessary to go into detail, again in regard to the history of the building of this big institution. It is enough to say that the money received by the city by the sale of the Electric Light Plant was used, and that the completed building will represent a cost of almost $100,000, and this does not count the furnishings which have been contributed by the generous people of Nacogdoches. The building is three stories in height and has a large number of rooms, but the builders with an anticipation of constant growth, laid the building plans with special reference to the future, so that other units may be added from time to time, and the building grow and expand as the demands for its expansion comes on with the passing years.

The Sentinel expresses this hope: That every physician in Nacogdoches, and every person who has contributed in any way towards the building and the furnishing of this big enterprise may live to see the day when their dreams partially realized in the opening of the hospital next Tuesday, may be fully realized, when other units shall have been added, and further expansion made until the Nacogdoches Hospital is one of the best and largest in all this section of country.

Nacogdoches Hospital Opened On Tuesday Under Flattering Auspices

In a quiet and unassuming way, under the auspices of the Auxiliary of the Nacogdoches County Medical Society and the auxiliary of the Nacogdoches Chamber of Commerce, the Nacogdoches Hospital was formally opened Tuesday afternoon, December 11, and this event will always occupy an important place in the material and industrial growth of Nacogdoches and the great area of which Nacogdoches is the central or local point. This is the consummation of an event which thousands of hopeful hearts and industrious hands have anticipated many, many long days and weary months, and it was indeed a happy throng that met at the big institution Tuesday afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock and continuing in unbroken procession until past 11 o'clock.

It is not necessary now to repeat in detail what has so often been said, except to say that the hospital when entirely completed and furnished will represent an outlay of about $100,000. The funds for building the institution were obtained from the sale of the municipal electric light plant, and the various rooms and wards that have been so well and admirably fitted up in keeping with the requirements of a strictly modern hospital, were bought by funds donated by quite a number of good people of Nacogdoches.

On a large card that stood on the counter of the office, those who called read these names and the contributions that stood opposite each name:

Mrs. Blount's Donation

One feature that has been inadvertently overlooked in mentioning the various donations to secure the hospital for Nacogdoches is the fact that the land on which the big institution is located, and well worth $10,000 was a gift of Mrs. E. A. Blount—a munificent donation, and one in fact that forms the foundation work of the hospital, because the hospital is built on this splendid lot, and it can be well said that there is not more beautiful location or a more appropriate location in this city.

In this connection the Sentinel has been informed that the funds for properly installing the requirements in all the wards and rooms is still considerably less than is necessary and so the matter of contributing is still open. Any amount will be gladly received, and may be handed to R. C. Monk, Dr. A. A. Nelson, T. E. Baker, Benton Wilson or any other person as there is no red tape whatever to the matter of making these contributions.

Persons in Charge

The hospital opened ready for business Wednesday morning, the patient being moved over from the North Street Sanitarium, which has served its good purpose long and well.

The Permanent Staff

Miss Bessie B. Crumpler will be in charge of the institution. She is a trained nurse and comes from the Tri-State Training Hospital at Shreveport with the very highest recommendations.

Miss Kathryn Baxer, also of Shreveport, will be the surgical assistant and she comes to Nacogdoches with the highest recommendations.

The night superintendent is Miss Lennie Graves who likewise comes here with the best experience and highest qualifications.

To these three good women the people of Nacogdoches through these columns extend a hearty welcome.

Is the Last Word

A Sentinel representative visited the hospital during the hours of reception and was delighted with the opening program as well as the entire plans and arrangements of the building. It was his pleasure to visit the building September 12, with Dr. Albert Nelson, at which time a lengthy description was given, and so it is not necessary to repeat at this time except to say that—

The entire building from ground floor to roof is built along the most modern lines and in accordance with plans secured at first hands by comparison with many other hospitals throughout the country. Every room is arranged with the outstaggering design and aim to secure the maximum service in connection with comfort and necessity, in the best and most approved way. The hospital is for white and colored patients. The colored patients will have wards on the first floor—men on one side of the hall that runs the full length of the building and women on the opposite side and the same care and attention that is given to white patients will also be given to colored patients. Wards for white, male and female, entirely separate, or separated by the long hall, or by walls, will be carried out for white patients on the second and third floors, and the opening capacity will be about 40 patients.

The building is lighted by electricity and heated by natural gas so that every room in the building has gas, electricity, and every other possible convenience. In every room there is a telephone, and over every door a light—a colored light which shows up just over the door of the room in which the patient lies when the patient touches a button, that calls the office of the chief or head nurse, so the head nurse knows instantly to just which room she may direct one of her assistants. The signal system in this respect is certainly complete. A regular telephone exchange of P H X exchange as it is called has been installed in the office of the superintendent or head nurse, and this enables communication to be had instantly at all times with every room in the hospital, every room in the nurses home. Gas and electricity, hot and cold water—in fact, every convenience known to science and human comfort has been devised and pressed into service. If it should become necessary the capacity of the hospital can be doubled so that the number of patients at one time could run as high as 75, or even more.

The kitchen and dining room are on the first floor. Gas is used in cooking and heating. Dumb-waiters run from the kitchen upward to the second and third floors, moving silently and noiselessly as well as swiftly in response to the pressure of an electric button, carrying the things to eat to where they are needed easily and quickly, speaking tubes being used at the exit or delivery point of the dumb-waiters so that those in charge may change a course or add to it without the least particle of trouble or exertion.

The laundry that originates on the second and third floors is gathered and placed in large steel chutes that deposit it on the ground floor where it is finally assembled and taken out of the building. In the same manner all refuse that accumulates in the building is placed in chutes that carry it to an incinerator where it is completely destroyed. None of the trash, refuse or anything outside of sewage disposal that accumulates in the hospital leaves the building, but on the contrary is destroyed in a specially built furnace. All closets, shelving and like service are built in and are made so in the most economical way.

The two operating rooms — the large room and the small room are on the third floor, over next to the tops of the great oak trees in the park. In these operating rooms the last word in the most approved surgical apparatus will be installed, so technical, and yet so simple that it would be quite impossible to describe even a part of it in the most general detail.

Throughout this building every plan has been worked out along the most modern and scientific lines. Nothing has been omitted or left out that could in any way conduce to the comfort and welfare of the patients and the general public in which interest it was built and to whom it will be dedicated some time in the near future.

There will be fourteen nurses employed all the time and they will be only of the most experienced kind. The Nurses Home a large two-story building has been completed just north of the hospital. The building has one large and modern sitting room, one lecture room, one room for the head nurse, and 10 or 11 other rooms all arranged for comfort and service, for the nurses are to be the busiest people connected with the hospital.

Santa will visit the boys and girls Christmas is one season when there should be no sadness, because of the season it represents.

Every little stocking should have something in it to bring cheer and bright smiles. Rufe further pleads, "fellows, but we all else don't forget this, the spirit of the Legion demands it! The Savior's birthday must be celebrated by gifts to these little ones. START NOW!"

Commander Scott also suggests that by urging each Ex-service man to pay his dues immediately and the Post to place a card or a roster on these trees with the names of paid-up members that the Christmas program will be given great impetus. That would serve as the Post's gift to State Headquarters so that in turn the State could make a Christmas present of the State Quota to the National office. All eligible men would want their card on that tree and to add his mite in this project. A wonderful idea of service, big Christmas trees for all little Texas and Nacogdoches kiddies, every ex-service man's card on the trees! Service and the christian spirit expressed in Yuletide Cheer!
