

New Employee Orientation

Original Implementation: September, 1990

Last Revision: April 30, 2019

Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to ensure that new employees receive sufficient orientation to enable them to perform their assigned duties. It is the responsibility of each hiring department to require new employees to participate in the new employee orientation.

General

The human resources department orients new employees to SFA in two different sessions: A benefit information session and a “Welcome Jacks” orientation session. The hiring department is responsible for scheduling the new employee for each session with human resources.

The benefit information session is conducted by the human resources department on or before the first day of employment. In this session, the new employee receives detailed information about SFA benefits and retirement options available to new employees.

The “Welcome Jacks” orientation is conducted within the first month of employment by the human resources department. This session provides the new employee with an in-depth review of SFA’s mission, vision, history, culture, policies, procedures, and traditions.

The human resources department also provides hiring departments with an orientation checklist that details appropriate topics to cover with all new employees. The checklist requires hiring departments to provide new employees with information regarding department details, training requirements and information regarding the expectations for performance of the job duties. The checklist should be returned to human resources upon completion.

While orientation is required for all new employees, the supervisor should maintain flexibility as to the extent of the orientation sessions, i.e., individuals having previous university employment may not require the in-depth training that would be needed by a first-time employee. At the supervisor's discretion, an employee transferring from one university department to another may be required to participate only in the departmental employee orientation.
