Data Collection Methods

- Electronic surveys were emailed to all graduates beginning in May 2020, with follow up emails sent over the course of six months to any students who did not respond, or responded with “still looking” to allow them to update their responses.
- The Center for Career and Professional Development team begins doing research on all students who are listed as “still looking” or “no response” approximately four months after graduation. If outcomes are found via Facebook or LinkedIn profiles, or is provided by a faculty or staff member, that information is added as a “knowledge response” on behalf of the student.
- Finally, beginning approximately five months after graduation, phone calls are made to all students listed as “still looking” or “no response” in order to ask about outcomes but also to remind these alumni that they can still use all of the CCPD’s services for free, for life. Any information provided by alumni from these calls is entered into the survey. 900 phone calls were made for the Spring 2020 class.
- The survey is considered closed six months after graduation. Alumni can no longer enter information themselves, but information can be updated by the CCPD.
- Please note that percentages listed above may not equal 100 due to rounding.
