

WOMEN'S AND GENDER STUDIES SYMPOSIUM CALL FOR PROPOSALS

SPONSORED BY:

The Stephen F. Austin State University Division of Multidisciplinary Programs

Noon to 5 p.m. | March 23, 2021 | Virtually on Zoom

Stephen F. Austin State University is expanding its Women's and Gender Studies Symposium to bring together academic and creative work from students within the Arkansas-Louisiana-Texas region.

Undergraduate and graduate students who have conducted research related to gender or women's studies are welcome to submit their projects. Presentation formats include paper presentation, panel, roundtable discussion, scholarly poster, performance and visual art.

The Women's and Gender Studies Symposium, sponsored by the Division of Multidisciplinary Programs, will be held March 23, 2021.

As an interdisciplinary symposium, we encourage submissions from across the spectrum. Topics might include but are not limited to:

- Intersectionality
- Social justice, Black Lives Matter, #SayHerName
- #MeToo and gender inequality
- The legacy of Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Amy Coney Barrett, Supreme Court decisions related to women and gender
- The centennial of the 19th Amendment
- Voter suppression, 2020 elections, including Vice President Kamala Harris, women in Congress
- The Biden administration, and women and LGBTQ representation
- Issues related to women and gender in literature and the arts
- Women, gender or LGBTQ topics related to media (film, television, music)
- Gamergate, gaming, virtual reality
- Women in nontraditional roles, women in the sciences, women in the military
- Issues related to women or LGBTQ populations in COVID-19, health care and medical humanities

The deadline to submit is March 5. For more information, contact Linda Levitt at levittlb@sfasu.edu. Send the attached form to wgs@sfasu.edu to submit to the symposium.
