Master of Education in Special Education with the Educational Diagnostician Certification Online Graduate Program (36 hours)

About the Program

The Master of Education in Special Education with the educational diagnostician certification offered through SFA ONLINE provides graduate-level preparation in the area of special education, assessment and education law. An educational diagnostician is a master's level professional who works within the public school system to ensure that special education services are provided to eligible students in accordance with all applicable federal laws and regulations, state statutes, Texas Education Agency, and the Commissioner of Education. The program consists of master's level coursework and preparation for certification as an educational diagnostician. This degree requires teacher certification and 2 years of teaching experience prior to admission to the program.

The curriculum is designed in accordance with the State Board of Educator Certification (SBEC) standards for educational diagnosticians and the Advanced Special Education Diagnostician Specialist Set from the international Council for Exceptional Children (CEC). These frameworks are utilized to insure that candidates receive a comprehensive foundation of knowledge based on educational theory, research and best practice policies. The program uses a performance-based assessment system to rate student performance on key assessments in various classes in order to provide data for accreditation and for program improvement. Program students will be prepared for and required to pass the #161 All-Level Special Education TExES prior to being granted testing clearance for the #153 Educational Diagnostician TExES. Some related certifications may be substituted for the #161 TExES requirement.
